Benefits and Instant Access to the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining

Discounts on conferences and events

IOM Communications Conferences & Events department organises in the region of 30 events a year for the Institute. The Institute's breadth of divisional activity enables us to deliver a broad range of conference, workshop and exhibition events. This gives materials, minerals and mining specialists unique opportunities to share knowledge and to learn. Attendance at Institute conferences will make an active contribution to your continuing professionalism. Members of the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining get priority access to events, at discounted rates.

Discounts on publications

The Institute continues its established reputation as a supplier of the very latest information on materials technology. Covering the whole spectrum of members' interests such as corrosion, plastics, composites and steels, our books and journals give excellent value. Members receive 20% reductions on all of our book titles from all sections of materials science and engineering. Members are also entitled to substantial reductions on our twelve authoritative refereed journals.

TMS e-partners

The Institute has linked up with TMS (The Metals, Minerals and Materials Society based in the USA) to offer reciprocal benefits to each set of members. Payment of a small fee, currently set at £20, allows access to the TMS Document Center and the electronic version of the monthly TMS members' magazine.

Use of member facilities

London and Regional facilities can be booked for meetings and events. In addition, the London office offers a Business Centre for your use. Why not stop by next time you are between meetings in London?

And more...

- Online access to member-only services
- Member's Benevolent Trust assistance in times of hardship
- Employment advertising in Materials World
- Complimentary recruitment advertising in Materials World for unemployed members

The Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining is a Registered Charity (269275)

What is the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining (IOM³)?

Incorporated by Royal Charter, the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining is a learned and professional body for people working in the materials, minerals and mining communities.

The Institute has approximately 18,000 members in more than 70 countries drawn from a wide range of disciplines. It caters for the interests of members through a number of specialist Divisions including ceramics, composites, iron and steel, plastics and rubber, biomaterials, electronic materials, light metals, surface engineering, materials science, packaging, processing, mining technology, petroleum and drilling engineering, applied earth sciences, minerals processing and extractive metallurgy.

How relevant is Institute membership to me?

Jobs are no longer for life! – therefore gaining professional status through the Institute could prove an essential career asset. Professional qualifications are a crucial factor in recruitment and career progression. The future international recognition of qualifications is set to transform employment opportunity – don't get left behind!

What grades would I be eligible for?

By completing this simple application form, you can become an Affiliate, Graduate Member or Professional Graduate of the Institute which gives you instant access to member benefits and services.

Applications for Graduate or Professional Graduate must be supported by copies of Degree Certificates together with an up to date, detailed CV.

The Membership Department will then advise an appropriate membership grade. This is determined by your initial qualifications, level of training and range of responsible experience.

I'm interested - what do I do now?

E-mail alerts covering news, events, jobs, local group activities and much more. To access this you need to set up a Member Profile and opt-in via the Members' area of www.iom3.org

Online access to member services

The Members' website is restricted and accessible by PIN. This includes electronic access to all Institute journals, advance details of job opportunities, online CPD, member profiling and other benefits.

Library and Information Services

The Materials, Minerals & Mining libraries offer the following services to members:

- Free postal loan service to members in the UK
- General enquiries and referral service
- Historical enquiries
- Database searches: literature searches / surveys / updates
- Abstracts
- Photocopying service

It is recommended to arrange an appointment prior to your visit to ensure staff are on hand to assist you.

Networking opportunities

When you are a member of the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining, opportunities to network abound! Local society meetings in the UK and overseas, conferences and events, workshops, annual dinners, works visits, technical meetings... all designed to enhance your technical knowledge and provide you with excellent networking opportunities at all levels.

Materials Information Service (MIS)

Need advice on materials but not sure where to turn? MIS offers a free helpdesk service to members, so help is only a phone call away. Let the knowledgeable MIS staff solve your problems for you!

Members' Magazines

Free to members, a choice of magazine will keep you informed about important developments in the materials, minerals and mining community. Editorially they embrace the whole engineering materials cycle, from mining and extraction, through processing and application, to recycling and recovery. Each issue carries authoritative technical feature articles looking at the latest technologies and reviewing the state-of-the-art in specific sectors of industry. They will also keep you up to date through regular sections on UK and international news, conferences, courses, exhibitions, new books, Institute news and new products and services.

Continuing Professional Development (CPD)

CPD is the lifelong learning process necessary for you to compete throughout your working life. The Institute recommends that members should spend at least 5 days per year on CPD and that it should be properly recorded using the online facility via the members' website. CPD is your personal responsibility although the Membership Department can provide you with helpful information.
